LATN 6455. Sallust. (3 Credits)
This course offers a close reading and in-depth analysis of the works of Sallust, "the most brilliant author of Roman history" in Tacitus's opinion (Ann. 3.30.2). Most of the course will be devoted to the study of Sallust's two fundamental monographs (Bellum Catilinae and Bellum Iugurthinum), but we shall read also selected passages from Sallust's most ambitious but fragmentary Historiae and from works that were not written by Sallust, but attributed to him. Close attention will be devoted also to Sallust's language and style, the transmission of his texts, and the fortuna of his work. In addition to the textual work and discussion of issues of translation, we shall focus on the following broader topics: Sallust's place within the tradition of ancient historiography, the historical context of his works, and the complex relationship between ancient rhetoric and historiography. Additional readings of ancient sources (e.g., Cicero's Catilinarium Orations, excerpts from Plutarch's Life of Marius etc.) will be assigned in translation.
