Language Proficiency

Applicants whose native language is not English must demonstrate English proficiency through standardized language competency exams. The Graduate Admissions Office reserves the right to evaluate an applicant’s language proficiency based on the admissions interview, English language exams, or other language assessments administered by the Gabelli School of Business and an additional language proficiency exam (given by Fordham University) prior to enrollment. Depending on the results, matriculating students may be required to take additional English language and American culture coursework outcome.
