Applications

Applications to GSAS are processed centrally through the GSAS Office of Admissions, although applicants are granted or denied admission only to specific degrees or advanced certificate programs. Fordham GSAS admits students to research degrees, including the Master of Arts (M.A.), the Master of Science (M.S.), and the Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.), as well some professionally-oriented degrees, such as the Master of Fine Arts (M.F.A.). Programs and degrees offered by GSAS are listed on the GSAS Programs and Degrees web page.

Applicants for graduate study must have received a baccalaureate degree or its equivalent from a college or university of recognized standing.

Any exception to this policy must be approved in writing by the dean. Admission recommendations to the graduate school are made by faculty within the program in question, and are based on the applicant's potential and preparation for graduate work in the chosen field as well as the availability of faculty and facilities for the applicant's proposed research interests. After receiving the faculty's recommendations, the final decision regarding admission is made by the dean (see Authority).

For certain graduate programs, prospective students must possess a grade point average (GPA) or otherwise meet specified coursework requirements to resolve any academic deficiencies in their preparation. Students are considered matriculated upon their registration/enrollment (see Matriculation (p. 1)).

Conditional Admission, Provisional Admission, and Modified Degree Requirements

Students admitted on a “conditional” basis must maintain a specified grade point average (GPA) or otherwise meet specified coursework requirements to resolve any academic deficiencies in their preparation. Students are considered matriculated upon their registration/enrollment (see Matriculation (p. 1)).

Applications to GSAS can only be submitted online.

Matriculation

Matriculated students are those individuals who have been accepted into a graduate degree program or advanced certificate program, registered for classes or the equivalent, and are actively working towards a degree or certificate offered by GSAS. Students are considered matriculated in a program when they first enroll in a course in that program.

Students may not be matriculated in more than one degree program simultaneously, whether internal or external to GSAS, except in those instances where a joint- or dual-degree program has been established. Under certain circumstances, a student may be enrolled in an advanced certificate program while being simultaneously matriculated in a degree program (see Advanced Certificates (p. 2)). Any other exceptions to this policy must be approved in writing by the dean.

For certain graduate programs, prospective students must possess a prior degree in order to matriculate in that program. Students who are in the process of completing such a degree (whether at Fordham or at another institution) at the time of their acceptance must subsequently submit an official transcript indicating that the degree has been awarded. If an official transcript is not received by mid-term of the student's first semester, a hold will be placed on the student's registration and records. Any exceptions to this policy must be approved in writing by the dean.

Deferral or Change of Program and/or Degree

It is GSAS policy not to permit a deferral of admission, though admitted students may seek permission to delay matriculation by no more than one semester. If an accepted student wishes to reapply the following academic year, s/he must do so by submitting a new online application, but is not guaranteed admission upon re-application. Any exceptions must be approved in writing by the dean. Application materials (e.g. letters of recommendation, Graduate Record Examination [GRE] scores) typically remain on file for up to 18 months after their initial submission.

Any change of program and/or degree requires a new application, the recommendation of the department or program, and the approval of the dean.
English Proficiency

International applicants whose native language is not English are required to complete and submit to GSAS prior to matriculation their official scores from the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). GSAS will also consider a student's International English Language Testing System (IELTS)—Cambridge English Proficiency Level language testing results.

Official TOEFL or IELTS scores should be sent directly by the testing service to the Office of Graduate Admissions, Fordham University, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences – Code # 2259.

Exemptions from this requirement can be requested by the applicant in her/his application, or can be made in writing by the applicant to the dean. Exemptions are generally permitted for international applicants who:

1. are native English speakers from countries where English is an official language; and/or
2. have completed, within the past five years, at least two years of study at an undergraduate or graduate institution in the United States or in a country where English is the official language of instruction. GSAS retains the right to request language evaluation from any applicant. The Fordham English Language Test (FELT), administered by Fordham's Institute of American Language and Culture (IALC), may be required for those students whose English proficiency scores do not meet GSAS program requirements. Additional coursework may also be recommended by the IALC (see Conditional Admission, Provisional Admission, and Modified Degree Requirements (p. 1)).

Students are permitted to register for two GSAS courses during the academic term in which they are completing any ILAC-recommended coursework, which generally occurs during their first semester of study.

Please note: Tuition costs associated with the learning of English as a second language are the responsibility of the student and will not be covered by a GSAS tuition scholarship. GSAS merit-based tuition scholarships are not applicable to the costs of additional coursework recommended by the IALC.

Non-Matriculated (Non-Degree) Students

Permission to register as a non-matriculated or non-degree student is awarded by GSAS and is granted on a course-by-course basis. Individuals who wish to register as non-matriculated or non-degree students must complete the online application located on the GSAS website and secure the necessary approvals before being registered each semester by submitting the GSAS non-matriculated application to the Office of Academic Programs and Support. Falsifying any information on this application, failing to file the application each semester, or failing to secure the necessary approvals will invalidate registration. The student remains liable for tuition and fees notwithstanding the validity of the registration.

Students who qualify for non-matriculated or non-degree registration will have earned an undergraduate degree with at least a “B” average in their major field of study and may fall into one of the following categories:

- students who wish to take courses in order to transfer these credits to another graduate program in which they are matriculated
- students who wish to take courses in order to transfer these credits to another graduate program in which they are matriculated
- students who wish to take courses in order to transfer these credits to another graduate program in which they are matriculated

Students who are denied admission to the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences as matriculated students may not enroll in courses on a non-matriculated basis without the written approval of the dean. GSAS and Fordham University have no obligation to admit any individual who has registered as a non-matriculated student or to grant a degree to such a student, no matter how many credits have been completed.

Non-matriculated students may take up to 12 credits in GSAS, with the approval of the department chairperson and the dean. Approval for non-matriculated status for more than 12 GSAS credits is not normally granted. If extraordinary circumstances justify non-matriculated status for more than 12 credits, the student must obtain the explicit written recommendation of the department chairperson and the written approval of the dean. No more than 12 credits taken as a non-matriculated student may ultimately count toward any GSAS program of study; any exception to this policy requires the written approval of the dean.

Non-matriculated students who register for the first time are considered “new non-matriculated” students upon registration. Those who have registered for up to two years are considered “continuing non-matriculated” students. Students who have not registered for two academic years are again considered “new non-matriculated students” upon subsequent registration and must submit a new application for non-degree study.

Advanced Certificates

Non-matriculated students who wish to enter an advanced certificate program apply online.

Matriculated students must submit the appropriate paper or online application to the respective department or departments. The department evaluates the application for approval and then submits it to the GSAS Office of Admissions to be processed.

For more information on advanced certificate programs and how to apply, see the GSAS Graduate Programs web page.

Early Admissions: The Five-Year B.A./M.A. and B.S./M.S. Programs

Qualified Fordham College at Rose Hill (FCRH), Fordham College at Lincoln Center (FCLC), Fordham School of Professional and Continuing Studies (PCS), and Gabelli School of Business (GSB) juniors may apply for early admission to select GSAS programs. Early admission students apply during their junior (or equivalent) year and take up to three courses in their senior year to count toward both the bachelor’s and the master’s degree. After an additional year of degree requirements, students are awarded a joint B.A./M.A. or B.S./M.S. degree.

Please refer to individual program materials for eligibility requirements (such as minimum GPA) and program participation. Programs that offer the early admissions option are listed on the GSAS Early Admissions page.
