

STUDENT ACADEMIC POLICIES AND PROCEDURES MANUAL

Student Life

The Graduate School of Social Service is a member of the Fordham academic community. Members of the community—administrators, faculty, and students—have a right to participate in the decision-making that informs the creation of policies affecting their community. Student involvement in the development of the school's policies and in its administration is an essential aspect of the educational process. Please reach out to the assistant dean of student services or the associate academic dean if you are interested in participating.