

CONCENTRATION IN BUSINESS LAW AND ETHICS

Courses in business law and business ethics are key to success in the working world.

This is why every Gabelli School student takes a core-curriculum course in each: Legal Framework of Business and Business Ethics.

In the law class, students learn the fundamental rules that govern doing business in the United States—and find out how to apply them in a shifting business landscape. In the ethics course, students explore the issues that affect the stakeholders in a business relationship, debating what constitutes good or bad conduct.

They also consider a question that is central to business education at Fordham: Should a business exist purely for the purpose of profit, or should it contribute to society in a greater way?

Requirements

The following three courses are required to complete this secondary concentration:

Course	Title	Credits
Two courses with the BLEA attribute.
One additional course with the BLEA attribute OR one course with the BLEB attribute.

The following courses have the BLEA attribute:

Course	Title	Credits
BLBU 3436	Commercial Transactions	3
BLBU 4431	ST: White-Collar Crime	3
BLBU 4434	ST: Business Organizations Law	3
BLBU 4436	ST: Business & Ethics of Sports	3
BLBU 4437	ST: International Bus Ethics	3
BLBU 4438	ST: Law, Business and the Arts	3
BLBU 4449	ST: Sports and the Law	3
BLBU 4450	ST: Employment Law	3
BLBU 4452	ST: Securities Law	3

The following courses have the BLEB attribute:

Course	Title	Credits
ACBU 4646	Ethics in Financial Reporting and Accounting	3
CMGB 7525	Cross Cultural Negotiation and Communication	3
ECON 3453	Law and Economics	4
FNBU 3440	Corporate Financial Policy	3
FNBU 4464	ST: Compliance and Risk Management	3
LPBU 3226	Exploring Entrepreneurship	3
MKBU 3448	ST: Social Marketing	3