STUDY ABROAD

In the long-standing tradition of Jesuit education, Fordham University encourages study that enhances students' appreciation of the world's people and their interdependence. Our goal is to help you gain an understanding of other cultures and to encourage you to consider incorporating a global dimension into your chosen field of study by offering a broad range of study abroad programs.

Semester-long and summer programs in business, arts, and sciences, as well as internship placements, are offered at the Fordham London Centre. Fordham's study abroad programs in Granada, Spain, are based in one of the most beautiful and historic cities of Andalucia. Courses in English or Spanish enable students to fully immerse themselves in Spanish language and culture or begin their study of the Spanish language. Students can also participate in community engaged learning and internships while in Granada. A broad range of major, minor, and core courses are offered at both program sites.

Fordham University has partnerships with universities in more than 50 countries around the world and offers over 100 study abroad programs, including opportunities for direct enrollment at prestigious universities, exchange programs, internships, community engagement, and experiential learning. Program types and academic fields vary by location. You can see a list of all the study abroad programs on the study abroad website and use the advanced search feature, which allows you to search for a program by field of study, academic setting, term, language, housing options, and much more.

Applications to study abroad are completed in the Study Abroad Portal and typically open almost one year in advance of when you wish to go abroad, so start early. Staff in the International and Study Abroad Programs office are available to answer any questions you might have and look forward to working with you to help make the world your classroom!

For more information and deadlines, please visit the International and Study Abroad Programs website.