

THEATRE MAJOR

The Fordham theatre program is a B.A. program offering four pre-professional concentrations for theatre majors: performance, directing, playwriting, and design and production. Admission into the performance concentration is by audition only. Admission into the directing, playwriting, and design and production concentrations is by interview and a review of portfolio work (directing and design and production) or writing samples (playwriting). Directing applicants with a portfolio of work may submit that as well. Students should visit the Fordham theatre website to obtain extensive information regarding the program and to schedule an audition or interview via www.fordham.edu/theatre.

Please note that both the theatre major and minor include a lab requirement each semester. If a student fails to complete a lab contract, then he or she loses eligibility to participate in any production (mainstage or studio) the following semester. If a student fails to complete a lab contract twice, then he or she may be dropped from the program.

The Fordham theatre program has a policy called warn/cut. In cases when the faculty has doubts about whether a student should continue in his or her concentration, a warning is given. Then the student has another semester to dispel the questions. If the evaluation remains unchanged after the following semester, then the student has the option of remaining a theatre minor, but must choose another major.

THEA 3004 Global Theatre History: Foundational Impulses and THEA 3005 Global Theatre History: Evolutions of the Present each fulfills the Advanced Literature Core requirement.

Theatre majors concentrating in design and production must substitute THEA 3920 History of Theatre Design for any of the two required theatre history courses. Students pursuing other concentrations may request permission to take THEA 3920 in place of one of the two courses.

Theatre majors are exempt from the fine arts requirement in the core curriculum. The minimum acceptable grade in a major course is C-.

² Theatre majors concentrating in design and production must substitute THEA 3920 History of Theatre Design for any of the two required theatre history courses. Students pursuing other concentrations may request permission to take THEA 3920 History of Theatre Design in place of one of the other two theatre history courses.

Availability

Students who attend study abroad theatre programs may apply certain courses to their theatre major, and should consult with an advisor prior to attending a study abroad program.

The major in theatre is available at Fordham College at Lincoln Center. Students in Fordham's School of Professional and Continuing Studies may major in theatre only if they receive the approval of their advising dean and/or department, and their schedules are sufficiently flexible to permit them to take day courses at the Lincoln Center campus.

Fordham College at Lincoln Center students: The requirements above are in addition to those of the Core Curriculum.

Professional and Continuing Studies students: The requirements above are in addition to those of the PCS Core Curriculum and any additional electives that may be required to earn a minimum of 124 credits.
